

What if your company isn't prepared for what's around the corner?

Emergency Preparedness Leadership

Because getting through an event is no accident.

Wednesday, March 29 • 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.
at the Hilton Garden Inn, Riverstone Conference Center • Kankakee

The early moments of a disaster are critical. And recognizing risks and understanding of what can happen helps us identify resources and to develop a plan to be prepared. What if there is no plan? It makes your company a prime target for legal implications, civil implications, OSHA compliance, fines, and more.

This one-day seminar gathers national experts in disaster preparedness to share their expertise, and to paint a clear picture of the risks of having a well-developed, well tested plan.

Participants will leave well equipped to prepare for the unthinkable, and to rise to the challenges that come with recovery from a disaster.

Emergency Preparedness Leadership

Developing a Realistic Emergency Preparedness Plan Stan Szpytek, Fire & Life Safety, Inc., Mesa, AZ

Preparedness is the key to a successful outcome, but too often, companies fail to realize how ill prepared they are. Preparedness goes well beyond an occasional drill or exercise.

In this session, Stan Szpytek, a nationally recognized expert on emergency preparedness will talk about conducting your hazard vulnerability assessment, developing your plans based on outcomes, and training and preparing your employees to respond.

OSHA Compliance Requirements for Emergency Preparedness Jocko Vermillion, Sorensen, Wilder & Associates, Bourbonnais, IL

Emergencies can create a variety of hazards for workers in the impacted area. Preparing before an emergency incident plays a vital role in ensuring that employers and workers have the necessary equipment, know where to go, and know how to keep themselves safe when an emergency occurs.

Jocko Vermillion, a former OSHA Compliance Safety and Health Officer, will discuss OSHA participation and expectations for the safety and health of your workers in an emergency.

Employer Liability Issues in Emergency Preparedness Mark Lies, JD Seyfarth, Shaw LLP, Chicago, IL

Hazardous materials in the workplace. Fires. Active shooter scenarios. Workplace violence. The list of potentials goes on and on. And with each event, employers find themselves facing potential liability issues from employees and the public. Preparedness cannot be overemphasized.

Mr. Lies is a partner in the Chicago office. His primary practice areas involve occupational safety and health law, related personal injury litigation and employment law.

Any Given Day

Frank DeAngelis, Retired Principal, Columbine High School, Littleton, CO

He experienced the unthinkable. Two teenaged gunman took the lives of 13 students and adults. His students. His faculty. His friends. It changed his life forever, in ways that most can't begin to fathom. In this session, Mr. De (as he is known to his students) will talk about the events of that day, the response, the aftermath, how it changed the lives of he and his family, and the recovery process. His message will clearly make everyone in attendance realize that disasters can and do occur any time, any where...on any given day.
